Describe, in as much detail as possible, the nature of the personal information and the exact page(s) where it is located. ***

My name is mentioned in this document nearly 400 times ("Cher Scarlett"), and the majority of it is republication of my tweets (which I own, per Twitter's content publication rules), and republication of my Medium posts (which I own, per Medium's content publication rules).

Most all of the content includes personal information about me, including linking to an old wedding registry containing more former legal name and the name of my husband, my medical diagnoses and other medical and or otherwise private, personal information that would be redacted via FOIA per HIPAA, my former legal name, which I changed for a safety reason and was found just by King County courts in Washington State to not have to be published together because it would pose a threat to my person. Much of the content is also containing republications of my family members' social media accounts, which she found by cyberstalking, and publishing their names. I am a public figure in the space we are working in, and my family members have now faced harassment because she has connected them to me publicly and pointed to their social media accounts without my or their consent.

I am seeking an anti-harassment order against her to stop her from posting such content, but it would be helpful if your company would take it down before it continues to do further harm to me and my family.

I apologize for falsely attributing that message to you. That being said, you're on one if you think what you are doing on Reddit isn't bullying. You are making assumptions, drawing conclusions, having full on dialogues about people you don't know. You act so above what I'm doing, but can't take a moment to self-reflect. - Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): When your ethics and personal morals diverge from a company's, or an industry's, you do something about it or you find a way to leave. Sometimes both. I don't punch down on laborers, but the idea you can't do anything else or that there is no ethical path forward is a lie. <sup>967</sup>
  - o Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): Even in the face of running out of funds to pay bills. I cannot. That doesn't make me superior, morally righteous or anything else but honest. I think what we are asking for is transparency from folks joining morally bankrupt companies who do evil things. You picked a side. <sup>968</sup>
  - o Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): When people say I self-sabotaged my Apple career, it's both true and not true. I started to see the divergence and did something about it. I couldn't do enough, and definitely couldn't continue with a hostile work environment, so I left. <sup>969</sup>
  - o Goo (@StopItCOVID): How are you claiming to run out of funds when you can afford to support your daughter, but Percocet, a snowboard, your husband, and post all of that here? You seem like you're lying about "not being able to pay your bills." <sup>970</sup>

- Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): I'm currently unemployed. Apple is threatening to sue me and I have $92,000 in attorneys fees I have no way to pay. I gave up my severance and COBRA. I did this to hold Apple accountable. If you are an Apple shareholder, please vote to audit the use of concealment clauses.<sup>942</sup>
- Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): Apple was quick to try to coerce me into signing a document that solicited a list of names of those who gave me material information as part of an unfair labor charge, to withdraw that charge without addressing it, and then silence me and stop me from helping other employees.<sup>943</sup>
- Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): Anyone who knows me knows I would never sign what they gave me, even during a terrible bipolar episode and in the face of a "get out of debt free and move on with your life card". Apple only believed I would do this because this is what they do. This is systemic, not sporadic.<sup>944</sup>
- Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): I told you all I was in the ER on Monday night, waiting for a bed in an ambulance. It's because I died a clinical death, and needed access to life support before the opioid blocker wore off.<sup>945</sup>
- Shantini Vyas (@_shantini_): Fuck, Cher. I'm so sorry. You can reach out to me at any time.<sup>946</sup>

- Cher Scarlett (@cherthedev): I had just tested positive for COVID the week before (yes, I'm vaccinated!), causing my daughter and I to be exiled from family gatherings for the holidays, was overwhelmed by harassment and defamation, struggling to find a job matched by expectations that wasn't spooked by what I'd done at Apple, and now, Apple was threatening to sue me. My head hurt, my body hurt, my heart hurt... everything hurt. I bought a Percocet from a friendly street pharmacist to help with all the pain and it turned out to be laced with Fentanyl, presumably a large amount of it, because I overdosed. I was lucky that we had a Narcan nasal spray, which is an opioid blocker, in the car in case we see someone overdosing when we do community work for the homeless that saved my life, along with 8 minutes of CPR, a 911 dispatcher, several first responders, and an overnight stay at the ER. <sup>1030</sup>

But, also, her mom's over here with tassels on her ottoman & looking like a fucking late 80s/early 90s goddess.

Sometimes it's weird to be in a different world than the one you grew up in. It can be 30 years before you find something you thought was normal is a "poor people house" thing.

Surely, BezosPost must have looked into Cher's basic financial & family history, right?

I guess her mom was over there slinging concrete with that dope-ass eye shadow.

I mean maybe... but....

desire to fight what she sees as injustice. "It is an incredible story," Parrah said. "She's a deeply inspiring figure."

In a series of interviews with The Post, Scarlett described growing up in Kirkland Wash., and being a senior astronaut who wanted to become a scientist and go to space. An avid gamer who created a website for her "golf" in the playing game Everquest, Scarlett says she studied for the SAT and got a near perfect score.

But her family was poor, she said. Her mother worked for a construction company and her father and stepfather came in and out of her life, she said. Though her memory is fuzzy, she said she was sexually abused as a young girl by a family friend. In high school, she began experimenting with drugs and began stripping at 18 to pay for a cocaine habit.

Re: Cher Stewart Settlement – Breach

Dear Alek:

As we discussed last week, it is Apple's position that Ms. Stewart has breached the Confidential Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Settlement Agreement") reached between the parties in Case 32-CA-282396. As you are aware, Ms. Stewart indicated a desire to leave Apple and requested severance. Apple negotiated in good faith to facilitate her departure. Apple took Ms. Stewart at her word when entering into this Agreement, with no knowledge that she was upon execution already in breach of her commitments.

Prior to executing the Agreement, and unbeknownst to Apple at the time, Ms. Stewart had already disclosed draft provisions of the Agreement to Nia Impact Capital. Thus, Ms. Stewart breached the Agreement at the time of execution by having already improperly disclosed the parties' negotiations leading to the Agreement in violation of Paragraph 14. She also breached the Agreement at the time of execution by falsely warranting that she had not previously disclosed any of the Agreement terms, provisions or negotiations leading to the Agreement. Apple learned of Ms. Stewart's breach the day after she received the first settlement payment and notified you accordingly. Subsequently, Ms. Stewart publicly admitted to breaching the Agreement, as Reuters reported on November 25, 2021: "Scarlett, who left Apple last week, said she decided to go public with that information this week, in violation of the terms of her settlement with Apple." Since then, Ms. Stewart has continued to breach the Agreement, including, but not limited to, repeatedly disclosing the Agreement's terms, provisions, and amount of the settlement payments. Most recently, she again breached her agreement on December 14, 2021 when she commented on the amount of the settlement on Twitter. The above examples of breach are an illustrative list of Ms. Stewart's breaches and not intended to be exhaustive.

You are aware that the parties, through their respective counsel, mutually drafted Paragraph 4 of the Agreement (Timing of Settlement Payment), which expressly conditioned settlement payments on Ms. Stewart's continued compliance with the Agreement's terms and conditions and that any breach by Ms. Stewart would result in nonpayment by Apple. Given that Ms. Stewart breached the Agreement before any settlement payment was due, Apple was released of any obligation to make continued payments to Ms. Stewart or her attorneys. Notwithstanding Ms. Stewart's continuing breaches, the Agreement continues to be in effect and Apple is preserving its right to seek liquidated damages for each separate breach.

Sincerely,

- Ashley Gjovik: would she be willing to put it in writing. we can negotiate something like no defamatory comments, no disparaging comments, etc she'd also need to correct all the misinformation she's shared with the press & the government. i have to be able to defend myself otherwise
- [Redacted] (redacted)
- Ashley Gjovik: would she be willing to correct the false statements or at least send something to those journalists, cc'ing me, saying she supports me or something. she told a lot of people i'm a liar and told them not to talk to me or write about me. journalists & gov. if she'll correct false information, show me she did, promise to stop talking about me, and have it in a legally enforceable contract with injunctive relief since she will refuse to pay damages like all this.... id' agree to stop talking about her
- [Redacted] (redacted)
- Ashley Gjovik: i don't think she'd actually stick to it otherwise. she just wants me to stop posting her shit right now. if i stop, then she'll defame me again. this is how it's gone. i'm like super impressed you've gotten this far though
- [Redacted] (redacted)
- Ashley Gjovik: i mean i already have her criminal record and she keeps saying every week that NO ONE CAN TELL HER WHAT SHE CAN'T SAY. i feel like this is amazing progress but i have her zero faith she'd actually stick to it, even with a contract. have you seen this

Also, Cher posted that today but I deleted the tweets yesterday.

So, she's apparently doubling down on demanding I remove info & allegations about her from my federal charges, and retaliating if I don't.

That's like the definition of 18 USC 1512 & 1513.

My company looked into Cher & found lie after lie. At times, she has lied about education, past job titles, health, even her relationship.

She says she is a single mom. Her husband's social media says otherwise. Then we found his deeply disturbing criminal convictions.

This is a last resort, not a block evasion.

I am reaching out in good faith in the hopes that we can resolve this conflict between us for the good of others, and each other. I will address some of the things I've seen/heard first. I do not wish to escalate, which is why I haven't participated.

I apologize for how my actions have made you feel. That does not justify your behavior.

Please remove my tweets that cannot be reasonably justified to be connected to you from your January NLRB memo, including medical information and information about my family. Please also remove your tweets that contain my former legal name. You are aware that it was changed for safety reasons, and I spent a long time ensuring they weren't connected anywhere.

1) I am not testifying against you, nor on Apple's behalf. I wouldn't do that unless I was subpoenaed, and I don't believe they would have me do that, because cross-examination would allow me to answer questions that would discuss their culture of surveillance.

I am named in their defense, which I was only informed of as a courtesy. I am upset by it, given what I've been through, which is why I mentioned it.

2) I have lied about my education in the past, and my role, tried to hide my gender, and invented whole companies. I had an infant, was making poverty wages at multiple hourly jobs, and I was trying to survive. I did what I needed to do, including enrolling in college multiple times and withdrawing for the students loans.

This is something I've talked openly about for several years in my advocacy against gatekeeping and sexism in tech, and the realities that not everyone in tech is rich. I was also on food stamps until I was almost 30 years old because of my low income, and my kid's dad never paid child support.

I've been very open about my past, going far beyond that. I WaPo did a very thorough background check on me and it would have taken more than the limit of 2,000 words to disclose everything. They chose to disclose the check fraud because it was the most extreme and fewest words.

3) Yes, I am a single parent. My marital status has been public -- I literally posted about when it happened. I've been separated since last July. I have never lived with my husband, and I don't live with him now. I am, however, supporting his household and my own while he works on his career, and makes very meager wages as a laborer. Our relationship is extremely unhealthy and I'm not ready to talk about any of it to the public, so I post occasional happy moments in trying to work on that relationship.

Do you think a parent who has a live-in partner and two incomes is a "single parent"? The point is the financial strain, not whether or not you are married. I don't get child support from my ex. My husband's kids' moms are strung out and can't help financially.

I qualify for food stamps. Does that tell you anything?

I am asking you to please remove his personal information from your Twitter, your NLRB charge, and anywhere else. His criminal history is literally no one's business. He's done his time. He also comes from an abusive home in poverty full of drugs and alcohol. The incident that happened when he was 12 years old was a manifest injustice in which he was also a VICTIM to an ADULT who got found "not guilty" in a trial and all of the information about what that adult did was stricken from my husband's case. We've been working with a program in our county to get it all fixed -- which is why we got married, because it's traumatic for him and legally, I can speak to his FREE attorney on his behalf to keep everything moving forward.

His life was destroyed by a new judge, and he was institutionalized as a child until he was 18. That same judge got us into the program. Words on a piece of paper with no context don't tell you what happened. It is deplorable for you to tell anyone's story based on what you "think" is public and fact.

4) I never called you "a racist". I said you tweeted something racist, "Pulling the race card", and spoke to you about it in a very diplomatic way. I also didn't care for the way you reacted to criticism over it, but still gave you advice on how to learn and grow from it as a friend.

5) Not all of my generalization tweets are about you. Most of them are not about you. While the GFM tweet happened at the same time as yours, there were multiple retail workers who came to me about yours the day you posted it extremely uncomfortable with the fact that you had posted very recently that you made almost $400,000 the year prior and spoke frankly about your financial comfort. The next day, another GFM popped up that was also asking for financial help without a clear use from someone from a place of financial privilege. I never told anyone not to donate to you. I wouldn't do that.

I stand by what I said -- and most of my followers and your followers do not cross over. GFM donations are not taxable. You made it very clear you had a lot of savings and had no financial motivations.

The Simpsons gif was not calling you a child. You are principal Skinner in that reference.

And "eject from amplification" means I blocked you. The tool I have for amplification is Twitter algorithms.

6) That brings me to my next point. I never told the press not to talk to you. You harassed a bunch of journalists using your Twitter account. Why on earth you thought it was somehow my doing, and not a consequence of your own actions is beyond me. My CNBC segment was live. There was no conversation before or after. I didn't even get to prepare, let alone have time to name drop you so they wouldn't talk to you. I didn't even know you were planning to speak with them. We weren't talking anymore at that point.

Even if I wanted to write you out, I don't have the power to do that. I only corrected misinformation, which honestly, I thought I was doing for your benefit. I am worried about what will happen to your mental health if any of your cases are dismissed due to any impropriety. I imagine you were told what I was told when I asked why they weren't covering the EPA stuff - there was absolutely no corroborating evidence and there were questions that couldn't be answered. The ones I spoke to about it were extremely disappointed that there wasn't anything they could write about yet.

You also convinced Chelsey I was trying to erase her from press coverage and the work. I literally talked about her every single time someone asked me about the WA bills, even though I had no idea what work she had done. The piece about Ifeoma was about her impact, not about the WA bill. Chelsey made it super clear she had been working with the senator on NDA law prior to Silenced No More Act. I invited her in to every single thing I was doing once I became aware of her. I talked about her on a podcast that she didn't even know about. I tried to get HER coverage for the EAP bill.

7) While I initially said you lied about being "suspended", though not publicly and to less than FIVE people, I never called you a liar. Those tweets were NOT about you. I was extremely bothered by the fact that you told me you discovered it was an adverse action, and started saying you were suspended.

instead of that you felt forced into requesting the leave. You were never suspended from access to systems, though I do believe you were discouraged from using Slack and communicating with coworkers. I was told not to, and punished for doing it anyway.

I also never argued it wasn't indefinite. They didn't give it an end-date, which is the definition of indefinite.

I also stopped feeling that you were being purposefully dishonest, and empathize with what you were going through because of the situation you were in.

7) I added you to the AppleToo piece as a peace offering. I did not believe you would be okay with being left out. That being said, I'm sorry I picked something you didn't like. I also don't follow you on Twitter... we've blocked each other. You seem to remember me saying I have a shadow account. I don't. I told you I looked at Twitter in private browsing mode to see what trolls/harassers were saying in the past who blocked me back, but that I stopped doing it because ultimately what they want is attention.

The ordering was random, and I had no idea you had a trigger with the article. I essentially know nothing about your past. I have a lot of suicide in my family and I take those things seriously. I made sure you weren't next to a person you didn't like, and didn't do much beyond that.

Also, it wasn't a "rank and file" rating. I only numbered them to show how many they were as a count. Because it's A LOT.

When I said we "connected over your legal expertise" I didn't say you "gave me law advice". Once again, it was a peace offering. Rather than sharing that I felt like you were dismissive of vulnerable people, I pointed to why I re-engaged with you after that, and yes, it was your knowledge about the law. I trusted you on it, and not because I was taking legal advice, but because you helped me navigate to important parts of law that I wouldn't have known about, and told me I could ask for things of a lawyer I didn't know I could ask for. It was a COMPLIMENT.

8) Yes, I reported you to the FBI. I was in a terrible place mentally, had relapsed, and you were posting private/personal information about me because you thought I was testifying against you and just to do me harm, and I was BEGGING you to stop via Melissa, and you took it upon yourself to try to capitalize on my distress by finding a way to make a material gain via GFM and Twitter. It's abusive, Ashley. And another government agency with insight into this suggested I report it to the FBI because they believe what you did was a federal crime.

My family is now being harassed because of you. You didn't block out my mother's name on your post about her, and her facebook is not locked down, and she has my daughter and the rest of my family members on display.

Please remove the images of my facebook, my mother's facebook, and any other of my family's social media accounts.

And btw, saying because in the ONE family photo we have from 1989 (which is absent a fucking FATHER, btw) my mom is wearing makeup is such an offensive, classist remark. Poor people can wear makeup. They can also purchase a used ottoman with tassels at 60 years old. Poor people don't need to be resigned to having nothing. They also tend to treat themselves when they get a bit of money because barely surviving is MISERABLE.

I happen to eat at TV trays because I can't afford a dining room table and chairs. My mom had those things.

Also, she was an administrative assistant at construction companies, she didn't "sling concrete". The people who did that made way more money than she did and they were in a union.

9) It is my opinion that your retaliatory discharge is hard to prove because the onus on Apple is only to prove that they would have fired you anyway. Given our text exchange, I don't believe it is. I do apologize for talking about it on Blind and sharing my opinion there, but that is not a crime and it wasn't due to Apple's culture or being some kind of controlled opposition. When I said to you, "oh so you're just in full-on fuck it mode," I was communicating this very thing to you. Did I report you for it at that time? No. Not because I didn't believe it was an IP leak (there were internal documents of unreleased tools), but because you believed it was invasive and an example of surveillance culture at the company.

When you started saying you did NOT leak IP and saying it was because of photos you took of yourself on your phone, I was confused, because you seemed to be pretty well aware of what you were doing when you sent all those documents to Zoe and stood by it.

When I said to Dave I could get behind you saying you believed it was a PROTECTED leak, but not when I said to Dawn I could get behind you saying you believed it was a PROTECTED leak, but not that it didn't happen, I wasn't talking about TO ME. I was talking about publicly. I was literally saying if you said the same thing to the press and on Twitter you had said to me I would have been supportive. I couldn't support what you were doing.

I also wanted to warn her that what you told me was different than what you told her. Because it was. You told me they declined both of your asks in July to be placed in a new position on another team and your paid exit. You told me that I should tell my lawyer I'm not willing to sign an NDA, and that that was your plan. You also told me MORE THAN ONCE about the no lawyer would take you unless you got fired. Once was in the text you shared, the other was when you were SCREAMING at me on FaceTime because you were upset about the Signal group criticizing your behavior and motivations. I had said that we were in far more privileged places than others -- both because we're white and cisgender, and me for my career tenure; you for your savings. You were extremely upset and worried by the idea of tying our issues together, and being associated with unionizing and Corey Moll, even telling the Signal group that your moral character examination could be at risk.

10) My outing myself as the confidential source and SEC whistleblower was not "self-sabotage" in the way you think it was. There needed to be something on the public record so that shareholders had the ability to either vote, or sue over the no-action. SEC tips are not public. In order for journalists to write about this, they needed 5+ NDAs "anonymously on background". One journalist accomplished that, with my confidentiality in tact, and a story was written and scheduled. After editing, the story got canned because it was "no longer news". Do you know whose AppleInsider piece on a whistleblower tip which contained absolutely no material information shareholders could use caused that? Yours. No one was willing to give their NDAs to yet another journalist who might publish. No one was willing to go on the record. I sacrificed my severance, COBRA, and attorney's fees so that the public would have actual evidence of the clauses.

11) I did not report any harassment to Twitter from you except yours to me. I did not say who I alerted, I just said "them". Implying that people are trying to have you assassinated or cause you to kill yourself, me included, is extremely harmful, and I alerted APPLE about the chain of tweets involved in doing so. I was criticizing both Apple and Twitter for applying the rules to the tweets about the men and current employees, but not the tweets about me and my family which fell under the SAME rules. I deleted the tweets because a dozen people who DID report them to Twitter got notice they were deleted. They didn't realize it didn't include the ones of me and my family, and I wrongly assumed they checked.

12) I blocked Kate and JeansSquirrel or whatever because both of them were amplifying harassment, including actual defamation, of me. I also told that to Kate, who I only unblocked to ask to stop punching down on the other hundreds of Apple employees involved in organizing because I'm helping them.

13) I have stood up for you repeatedly. Even IN some of the threads you claim are me harassing you. It's extremely frustrating to watch you try to make something true because you think it is, but I guess this is the kind of thing that will make you a good lawyer.

Even in one of the posts you claim is discrimination because you... don't have kids... I said I was WORRIED for you. I am. I was saying you'd be fine financially because YOU TOLD ME you had plenty of savings to weather the storm. You also told the entire internet that on Twitter when you patted yourself on the back for how smart you'd been about saving and investing. You cut out the context that made it clear I was saying you'd be fine financially, which sure, I shouldn't have shared my opinion on Blind, but frankly, I was sick of being attacked because of your behavior in spite of my own being very different.

I feel that you have been treated terribly by Apple, and in spite of my personal issues with you, I want you to have justice, not only for the common good, but because having a government body hold an abusive corporation accountable is validating and therapeutic. The DFEH lawsuit against Blizzard changed me in a very good way.

I'm sure there's plenty more things that are mixed in there but the main take aways are:

- 1) I hope you get justice
- 2) I apologize for sharing my personal opinion about the difficulty in proving your case, and sharing that you leaked internal docs/IP
- 3) I apologize for sharing my personal opinion that you would be fine financially
- 4) You need to delete the posts about my family and those that contain my previous legal name
- 5) You need to delete my tweets from your memo that contain personal information about me and my family, including my previous legal name, my medical information, any and all things pertaining to my family
- 6) You need to remove all assertions that I am accounts trolling you

Sincerely,
Cher

[18] Questions from Rachel at Mashable

On Aug 27, 2021, at 4:43 PM, Rachel Kraus <rkraus@mashable.com> wrote:

Hey Ashley, thanks for responding to me earlier. As I mentioned, the scope of this article will be about the online harassment you, Cher, and other Apple employees who are speaking out against the company are facing online (so far, I have seen Twitter and Blind).

1) Since the beginning of 2021 since you started speaking publicly about Apple workplace abuses, have you faced vitriol online? If so, on which platforms?

The 1st Amendment bestows upon us many gifts as well as challenges. I can speak about my experiences and people are free to respond mostly how ever they'd like — and that's by design. I accepted this risk when I decided to speak out.

When I partnered with Mashable in 2013 as a lead volunteer in drafting the first "Digital Bill of Rights", I advocated for free speech & the ability to remain anonymous online, and I still do. When we speak out, we know not everyone will agree with us and that's okay. As long as people want to debate in good faith, even anonymously, I'm all for it.

Since I've spoken out about Apple, I've been met overwhelmingly with support from current & past colleagues, the press, and the public. I also have many friends who are senior leaders at Apple who continue to support me through all of this.

Beyond a few suspiciously overly-invested trolls, any conflict I've faced online seems to be rooted in folks simply trying to understand my story & motives, and trying to reckon with challenging their perspectives of a highly respected company with deep brand loyalty. Many stray remarks seem to be rooted in cognitive dissonance.

Unfortunately she leaked IP so the retaliatory discharge will be a tough one to prove. She also is now saying she was suspended and that's not true. I'm concerned for her, but she made a lot of money and has no dependents. She's almost done with her law degree. She will be fine.

Besides the facts that I didn't leak IP & that I was forced on leave, discrimination against someone based on whether they have children or not is discrimination based on sex. If she was an employer, that statement would violate EEOC/Title VII

What case is this from?

Ashley M. Gjøvik @ashleygjovik · 10h

I don't want to identify her. This is incredibly recent & she's been through enough already. I know her. We were friends & used to go out drinking when I joined that team. But she disappeared & I never heard from her again. Now I know why.

Cher Scarlett @cherthedev · 10h

I assumed this was a public case, wasn't trying to out anyone!

Ashley M. Gjøvik @ashleygjovik · 10h

I would like to please request to protect her identify from this broad of a forum w/out her consent, even if the case itself is public.

Anyhow, @Apple & @tim_cook know EXACTLY which case this is. Now we definitely know why I haven't been fired yet.

Cher Scarlett @cherthedev · 10h

Don't you think people are going to look for this case now that you posted it?

Ashley M. Gjøvik @ashleygjovik · 10h

I have no control over anyone but myself. But I did say please. The more you bring this up, the more likely it is they will though. So please, let's not.

Cher Scarlett @cherthedev · 10h

Honestly, you responding to me in the way you did here felt really aggressive and presumptuous as if I was going to look into it, discover who it was, and out them. I don't particularly understand why you would imply I was going to do that, when I stated I wasn't.

Sal @OSal9000 · 9h

You asked her to name the person, she repeatedly declined. Hardly aggressive

Hi Cher! I hope you're well. I just wanted to reach out and say we miss you and hope we can keep working together. I feel really bad i had to deliver some messages that might have seemed very different than previous conversations without having time for us to get together and really talk it out. You brought up concerns that i would have really preferred to get on a WebEx and really dig into -- but we were in such a time crunch. Maybe if you're open to it though we could still do a video or call and get to know each other? And see how we can support each other? You seem super cool & i'm very impressed by your courage in speaking up for others.

I. Findings

The Court, having reviewed the petition, the relevant court records, and testimony, if any, and makes the following findings:

Basis to Grant Relief from Registration

A. Adjudication in Juvenile Court - RCW 9A.44.143:

- ☐ Class "A" Felony at Age 15 or Older: The petitioner was required to register for class "A" felony sex or kidnapping offense(s) committed when the petitioner was 15 years of age or older, and:
- at least 60 months (5 years) have passed since petitioner's adjudication and release from confinement, whichever is later, and he or she has not been adjudicated or convicted of a sex offense, a kidnapping offense, or for failure to register during that time;
  - is not otherwise prohibited by any provision in RCW 9A.44.143 from being relieved of his or her duty to register within the state of Washington;

Basis to Grant Exemption from Community Notification

So I do want to say that the point she made there is legitimate

We do have a lot of privilege which is why it's important that we speak out

I think your comment there may put you in a precarious position and I think you might want to get ahead of it

It could hurt your entire position

And obviously I don't think any of her other claims are legitimate, and even if that one is disingenuous- it's still valid and one thing I've learned is that you have to validate real concerns like that even when they are from bad actors
